

Orientation worker Dukes, directs incoming freshmen

Freshman Orientation Over; Reactions Aired

With Freshman Orientation ending on September 12, the reactions of students, faculty, and administrators were rich and varied. Some complained of too much cynicism and communications failures; others were full of praises for the effort of many dedicated students.

Mr. Lavin, in an exclusive Greyhound interview, remarked that he was "encouraged to see the increased student involvement" in orientation. There were 55 students in this year's orientation, over approximately 25 in the 1968 program. He commented further that "the students rendered invaluable assistance to that program. They aided the adjustment of freshmen to college life and eased the incoming student into the transition from high school to college." While there were some problems, Mr. Lavin was laudatory of the student effort.

With the freshmen themselves, there was less conviction about the worth of orientation. The length of some speeches by members of the faculty and administration and the time lags between preplanned activities were the primary objections. The reaction to the ROTC presentation is an outstanding example. One freshman commented, "It was just too long," while another remarked, "I had already made up my mind." Some students indicated, however, that the ROTC address had been instrumental in deciding on the ROTC option open to freshmen this year for the first time.

While students objected to the number and frequency of addresses there were exceptions. Father Sellinger, Mr. McNierney, and Col. Johnson were singled out as speakers whom the freshmen felt worthwhile.

—On Campus—

October 17 and 18 will mark the dates for the third annual Loyola College Homecoming. As in past years, the highlight of the weekend will be the Homecoming Dance, held in the Student Center and the gym on Saturday the 18th. That afternoon, the Greyhound soccer team will face off against arch-rival Towson State in the Homecoming game. Students are reminded to purchase their tickets as early as possible.

The most appreciated aspect of the orientation program was the group discussion with a student and faculty advisor. One student commented, "I got more out of these sessions than from most of the others."

On the social side, mixers received a great deal of comment, mainly complaints about the ratio. The entertainment was considered excellent.

Most freshmen thought that the orientation conveyed an accurate and indeed favorable image of the college. But, of course, there is one in every bunch and this one said, "It was boring, so I left and went to the movies."

Butler Hall Unfinished, Dr. Fisher Says Construction Plagued By Summer Strikes

Last year, Loyola's experiment with resident students proved so successful that the Administration decided to construct another residence hall.

Construction on Butler Hall, scheduled for completion at the beginning of September, is still underway. Dr. Jacob Fisher, who has been negotiating with the construction companies all summer, stated that it might still take "six weeks at the outside" to finish the building.

According to Dr. Fisher, the reason for the difficulty is that when accepting bids for the construction, the contractors had to hire workers belonging to unions. This, of course, allows for the possibility of strikes. "We have had to deal with several subcontractual strikes this summer, and we've been caught in the middle each time," said Dr. Fisher.

The strikes have involved several aspects of the building operation, from transportation of materials to the laying of floors. The most serious strike occurred at the Borden Chemical Company, which is the only company in the U.S. that manufactures a material necessary in building walls.

Dr. Fisher does not feel that any great blame should be laid on the construction companies

Student Senate Opens New Year; Budget Cuts First Big Contest

In an unprecedented administrative move, Mr. Ruff, at the last Student Senate meeting (September 18th), announced the inception of a new plan for fiscal responsibility on the part of the Student Government.

The Statement on Fiscal Responsibility outlines the responsibility of the Student Government to the College, especially in financial matters. Then it names the members of the Ad Hoc Committee on Fiscal Affairs: Joseph Runge, James Blaney, James Ruff, and Larry Dewberry, whose purpose it was "to study the initial proposal presented by the Townsend, et al, Administration of last year and make recommendations."

Their proposal raises the previous contingency fund of $1,000 to a proposed $5,000, broken down into a Senate Subsequent Allotment Fund of $4,500 and a General Executive Fund of $500. Some activity budgets have been cut as a result. The budgets of the Greyhound, Ignis Literary Magazine, Young Democrats, Young Republicans, Radio Club, the Open Mind, the Mendel Biology Club, Loyola Students for Social Action, the Green and Grey, the Engineers Club, the Dramatic Society have been cut or dropped below the initially proposed budgets, while the Block "L" Club, Glee Club, the Mathematics Club, the Resident Student Association were additionally funded.

The Senate passed the section in the proposal that dealt with the Greyhound, while the rest of the proposal was tabled. The SG will give the Greyhound money to publish a six-page paper and, on or before December 1st, the responsibility of the newspaper will be reviewed. Mr. Ruff explained, however, that Senate approval was not necessary to pass the recommendations. He said that this was just a courtesy and in the future the SG planned to propose that Senate approval have the force of law.

This proposal has raised some furor in the minds of some activity heads. Some of these suggest that the SG has acted contrary to the intent of the Constitution. (See Letters to the Editor Column). Mr. Johnson, however, asserts that the SG has acted entirely within the wording and sense of the Constitution.

T.V. Faculty On Campus; Mr. Ross Named Director

Loyola College has announced the opening of a new closed-circuit television facility on the Evergreen campus and the initiation of two undergraduate courses and one graduate course in the area of television. Mr. Edward Ross, Assistant Professor and Director of Dramatics, has been appointed Director of Television. Mr. Ross and two newly appointed faculty members will teach Loyola's first television course offerings.

Dr. Frederick Breitenfeld has been appointed Adjunct Professor and will teach a graduate course entitled Television in Education. Mr. Ross will teach the two undergraduate courses and will be assisted by Mr. Thomas Duncan, newly appointed Adjunct Instructor. Mr. Duncan will also function as Technical Director of Television and Director of Audio Visual Aids.

Loyola's television facility has been developed under the direct supervision of Dr. Jacob Fisher, Vice President for Planning. Mr. Duncan acted as technical consultant. The entire project was formulated and executed over a period of two and one-half years. It has been partially funded by two grants received by Loyola from the Office of Education of the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The air-conditioned studio and control room are located in the Faculty Building. The studio is equipped with cyclorama type curtains and illuminated by a portable lighting system. Adjacent to the studio is a storage area, repair shop, and office of the Technical Director.

During the past two years eight Loyola faculty members participated in various TV indoctrination activities. These faculty members will form the nucleus for the preparation of TV classroom materials. During this past summer seven Loyola students were trained to operate the control room and studio equipment.

One graduate and two undergraduate courses are going to be offered this year. The undergraduate course will examine television as an art medium, as an industry and as a vehicle of communication. The graduate course reflects the College's commitment to the community by training teachers from the local educational systems in the technical and educational aspects of television. One section of the undergraduate course and graduate course will be offered in the evening to make them available to as many interested members of the Baltimore community as possible, and both courses will include student experience in operating the studio and control room equipment.

Construction of New Dormitory continues themselves. "These things just happen sometimes, and nothing can be done about it," he said. "The main reason for the difficulty we are having is that the starting date for construction was around December 16, 1967. This allowed the companies only a minimum of time to complete the job."

"I've been over on the third or fourth floor several times to check on the progress of the work, and never once did I hear a complaint," he said. "The students have been just great about this. It's nice to know that at a time when there's so much difficulty on campus, students can be so understanding of administrative problems."

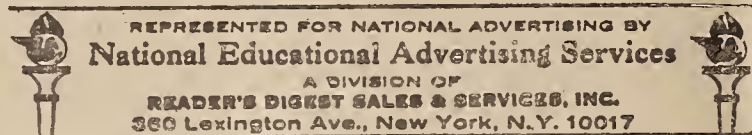

THE GREYHOUND

is the student publication of Loyola College. Published weekly during regular day sessions by Loyola College. The Greyhound is a publication by and for students, and the opinions expressed therein are not necessarily the views of the Administration. Official pronouncement by the Administration will be so designated.

Budgets

While the actions of the Student Government ad hoc committee on fiscal responsibility have caused much debate and heated words, I think that the solution to the conflict lies in the answering of two nagging questions concerning the constitutionality of the committees' inception.

First, what was the reason for the creation of this body and why did the S.G. bypass the constitutionally approved body for fiscal matters, the Finance and Appropriations Committee?

In discussing the matter with S.G. officials, they stated the justification for the creation of the ad hoc committee was the fiscal responsibility of the S.G. for activities budgets. While this cannot be debated, the constitution explicitly places this onus in the hands of F&A. At no time in the entire process of budget re-evaluation were the members of F&A made aware of the fact that such action was being taken, nor were they informed that an ad hoc committee was being established. Had Mr. Jack Johnson, our S.G. President, deemed it necessary for a re-evaluation to take place it would have been simple for him to have F&A convened and to discuss the matter with them. There appears no reason why this duly constituted body would not have considered Mr. Johnson's proposal if the situation were as pressing as he contends. It was the right, constitutionally, of the F&A to be involved, yet they were left totally out of the picture.

Second, Mr. Johnson claims that through his interpretation of the constitution, the powers for budgetary allocations did not rest with F&A but rather with the treasurer of the S.G. alone.

Even though a reading of the involved section—S.G. Constitution Division II—has yet to be so interpreted by anyone but Mr. Johnson, the issue goes far deeper. Where does Mr. Johnson find his power to interpret the constitution in any way, let alone in such an important and touchy matter? Section II of the S.G. Constitution which deals with the powers of the executive branch does not give the power of interpretation to the President. However, a later addition to the constitution places this right in the hands of the Student Judiciary Board which could not have given any ruling on the matter, since when the action was taken, they were below their constitutionally operative number of five members.

While the involvement of the Greyhound in this matter of budgets limits the amount of ironic distance I can obtain from the matter, it is my opinion that the facts indicate, far above the level of objective reasoning, that

Mr. Johnson and the Senate have acted unconstitutionally in this matter and deserve the censure of the student body not on their intentions, but on their methods.

Charming

Two weeks ago, Loyola held its first mixer, in conjunction with the New Student Orientation. To the regret of both those who attended and those who conducted the aforementioned mixer, it was something of a flop.

Aside from the fact that the music was on the level of ear splitting, there was one major cause for this failure; the total lack of co-operation between Notre Dame and Loyola on social matters.

Saying lack of co-operation, however, indicates that there might be blame on both sides, so let me make something clear: Notre Dame scheduled an all-girl activity on the night of our mixer and refused, despite three months of prior warning, to change their plans.

Many people at Loyola thought the Orientation Committee should have acceded to the plans of our Charming neighbors and changed the date of our mixer, in a gesture of co-operation. This would not have been co-operation, it would have been capitulation! If the future holds any hope for the Loyola-Notre Dame thing, it will be in the form of both schools, not just one, giving ground.

It is obvious that Notre Dame would prefer to continue their adulation of Hopkins and their afrotery of Loyola. So be it, but I would advise all Loyola men to try to burst this bubble of mindless superiority every time Notre Dame conducts a social event, for as Homer said, "When snobs give dinners (i.e. mixers) gentlemen may just walk in."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ad Hoc

Dear Mr. Lavin:

It has recently come to our attention that over the summer the Student Government established an Ad Hoc Committee to review procedures related to activity budgeting. This is indeed a laudable undertaking and we commend Student Government for their ambition.

It seems, however, that they have exceeded their constitutional powers in further establishing a revised budget to supplant the budget originally submitted by the Finance and Appropriations Committee. Apparently they are operating under the belief that this revised budget is official. In today's session of the Senate, I pointed out that such was not the case and that this move would have to be constitutionalized by referendum. I was speaking as Amicus Senatorum.

You will remember that this past summer I advised you regarding the freezing of Activities Budgets. I told you that this move was unconstitutional, and would surely lead to trouble in September. Apparently my advice was ignored.

Also, I spoke with Mr. Becker this summer and he was annoyed by the confusion within SG regarding this whole affair. Further, according to Mr. Becker, the budgets originally submitted to his office had been found satisfactory and had been approved as the official budget for fiscal 1969-1970.

According to Appendix D, Division II of the book College Organization, (which I had understood to have been posited as official college policy) under the title of Finance and Appropriations Committee, section 2 most clearly states: "It (the F & A Committee) shall have the final decision on all matters of activity budget including that of Student Government." We find no constitutional basis for the action that SG has taken!

It therefore seems that Student Government is operating unconstitutionally, usurping the powers and privileges of another duly constituted student affairs administration.

Further, the activities budgets were revised without affording any opportunity to the activities to justify their stated fiscal requirements. Why, for instance, was Ignis, surely as important, dare I say more so, as any other activity on campus, reduced from their official budget of some $2350.00 to a revised budget of a mere $600.00? Surely you are aware that Ignis is largely the vehicle through which the efforts of our students in realms academic are promulgated throughout the Baltimore literary community. What buffoon supposes that even one (1) presentable issue of Loyola College's Arts and Letters magazine can be published for the paltry sum of $600?

Why, if this Ad Hoc committee found the official budgets unsatisfactory, did they not return the budgets to the appropriate body—the Finance and Appropriations Committee? You will remember that the F & A committee was the subject of a constitutional amendment in the same election which brought the present Student Government executive to power. It is not by any stretch of the imagination a defunct or obsolete body.

We detect evidence of serious malfeasance on the part of our Student Government.

Therefore be advised that alienation and anger are now rampant in a considerable constituency within the Loyola College Student Body and that unless appropriate remedial action is undertaken IMMEDIATELY, pressure, strong pressure and any further means deemed necessary, will be brought to bear to insure respectable and honorable conduct on the part of our Student Government.

Peace Mass

To the Editor of the Greyhound:

In the Summer, 1969, issue of the Loyola College Alumni Association Bulletin, there appears a Report of the Alumni President over the signature of Mr. John F. Doetzer. A portion of the report stated "... We find many seeming contradictions on campuses today that tend to confuse and anger alumni everywhere, and the press is only too willing to publicize the disobedient acts of the relatively few students while completely ignoring the responsible and courageous acts of the majority of students. We do have a small peace group on campus that seems to get a disproportionate amount of publicity. ..." In a later paragraph, Mr. Doetzer states "Loyola's peace group asked the college administration to prevent outsiders from coming on campus in the course of their activities. If you can picture for a moment what might have happened on our campus with two such conflicting groups conducting exercises at the same time in a confined area, we can be proud of our administration and students for conducting themselves in an intelligent and responsible manner."

It appears that Mr. Doetzer does not know Loyola's students. This can be excused since he does not have the time to be on campus. But he should not try to tell fellow alumni about events with which he had no contact.

It so happens that the leaders of the "peace group" also happen to be leaders of student organizations such as the school newspaper, literary magazine, social action organization, ASO, Society of Christian Understanding, and Young Republicans. Mr. Doetzer may call this strange coincidence "infiltration" (a common charge presently); it is, however, more reasonable to believe that the more concerned and active students also happen to belong to the "peace group."

Another thing Mr. Doetzer seems to grossly misunderstand is the attitude of "the opposing groups." Many of the members of the ROTC battalion expressed disappointment with the simultaneous scheduling of the President's Review and the Peace Mass because they wanted to attend the Mass. As a matter of fact, some of them did attend the ending of Mass when the Review was over.

I do thank Mr. Doetzer for his commendation of our "intelligent and responsible" behavior, though I think he is proud of us for the wrong reasons.

Shalom,
Fraternally yours,
William C. Rickle, '70

How Rocky Attained Immortality And A Warm Cage Or A Coon Ode

Rocky Raccoon, pseud, "Evergreen," is no longer with us. Mangy, puttering, polite visitor from the mysterious woodlands beyond our borders, Rocky is no longer here. True to the spirit of his soul and conviction, Rocky in a Promethean burst of gallantry, grappled with the forces of evil that were greater than himself. And, as is always the fate of the finest of their kind, Rocky was defeated.

Those who inhabit the hinterland in the red brick edifices on the periphery, knew Rocky well. Often would he amble across their lands, leaving behind him a feeling only the wizards know, a feeling akin to keeping vigil for the sunrise on a chilly night and the feeling when the sunrise comes. And the elders, huddling round the fire, would tell their wide-eyed children, "Today, through the woods, I saw Rocky pass," and the children would shiver.

Children of wicked bent were known to throw rocks at Rocky, but in him there was not the slightest sliver of evil intent. His worst sin was accosting passers-by and checking them for apples, which is better than most of us can say. And by and by, Rocky rose and took his place in our mythology, along with Viking Women and the Sorns.

But, then one day, out of the East, the dark shadows of Evil Incarnate began to emerge, casting its long arm over the face of our world. And the people began to quiver in its advent. But Rocky bumbled along, unconcerned, knowing that the day of Reckoning would come and that he would be ready.

It is the nature of Evil to work through instruments. We do not know who was the instrument of evil this time, witting or unwitting. But Rocky must have seen the car coming toward him, and he must have known that this was the test. And in that moment he knew was equal to it.

The people in our land, when they heard their defender had been brought, low, muttered angrily among themselves, and talked of the days of the witch hunts. Who, they murmured, could be so crass, so callow, as to harm one so gentle, one so mild. But Rocky himself discouraged talk of vigilantes, for he is of finer stuff.

As it happened, two wanderers came upon our hero and invoked the assistance of wizards, who carried him off to Valhalla. There Rocky is taking the rest he well deserves, having fought the good fight for so long. For even the worst of evil could only weaken, but never destroy, one so noble as Rocky.

He resides now at the SPCA center at 3300 Falls Road, but soon he will come home, stronger and prepared to avenge the misfortune he was dealt.

Thirty-Nine More Teachers Join Instructional Staff

Thirty-nine new members of the faculty have joined the Loyola College community, bringing the total number to 175, serving 3,000 students in the Day, Evening, and Graduate Divisions.

Joining the Accounting Department are Adjunct Assistant Professor Harry Finkelstein; and Adjunct Instructors George W. Cox, James H. Dunn, George E. Henkel, Edward W. Reese, and Peter Sensenbaugh, Jr.

Reverend James A. P. Byrne, S.J., has been named Visiting Professor of Ancient Classics.

Joining the Business Administration staff are John W. Gordy as Adjunct Instructor, and Dr. Norman Hopmayer as Professor.

In the Department of Education, Dr. Frederick Breitenfeld, Jr., will be Adjunct Professor of Educational Television; and Rev. Nicholas A. Kunkel, S.J., will be Visiting Professor of Education.

New members in the English Department include Assistant Professors Patricia Babcock and Thomas E. Scheye; and Adjunct Instructors Grant A. Fults, Peter F. O'Brien, S.J., and Patrick J. Sullivan, S.J.

Appointments to the Department of Mathematics include George Mackiw as Instructor, and Dr. William Reddy as Assistant Professor.

Joining the Military Science Department as Adjunct Assistant Professors are Major Robert C. Barron and Captain Garry P. Hixson.

In the Modern Language Department, Peter H. Leffman will be Assistant Professor of French; Peter M. Sullivan will serve as Instructor in German; and Rudolfo Zea will be Adjunct Instructor in Modern Language.

The Philosophy and Theology Departments will each have three new members. Joining Philosophy are Assistant Professor Dr. Malcolm G. Clark, Instructor John J. O'Donnell, S.J., and Adjunct Instructor Philip J. Rossi, S.J. The new Theology faculty includes Professor Dr. Webster T. Patterson, Adjunct Assistant Professor Rev. Francis M. O'Connor, S.J., and Adjunct Instructor Rev. Thomas J. Penn.

Also appointed are: Rev. Francis Maciorowski, S.J., and M. Thomas Myers as Instructors in Physics.

The Department of Psychology will have three new members: Adjunct Instructors Gregory C. Helweg and Oscar J. Meehling, and Adjunct Professor Dr. Alan L. Plotkin.

Walter P. Carter, former chief organizer for the Model Cities Program, will be Adjunct Assistant Professor of Sociology, Mrs. M. Antonia Keane has been appointed Instructor in Sociology, and Dr. Charles B. Keely will serve as Assistant Professor of Sociology.

College Again Hosts Art Show

The Fourth Annual Outdoor Art Exhibit at Loyola College, featuring works of 80 prominent artists in the greater Baltimore area, will be held on the athletic field, Charles Street and Cold Spring Lane, on Sunday, September 28, from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. The exhibit is open to the public free of charge. Students are especially invited to attend, in keeping with the College's commitment to foster the Fine Arts.

The annual show is sponsored by the College and the Alumni Association. Co-chairmen for the event are Dr. Morgan Pritchett, Chairman of the Modern Language Department, and J. Edward Davis, past president of the Alumni Association. Father Sellinger serves as honorary chairman, and Cris Goetzke is student coordinator.

In case of rain, the exhibit will be held on Saturday, October 4.

Soccer Team To Face Lynchburg In Initial Test Of 1969 Season

Loyola's soccer team will put its two year undefeated skein on the line tomorrow when they face Lynchburg College in their opening match of 1969. This year's team will feature a high scoring front line anchored by Ty Smith, Lenny Lewandowski, Will Cook, and Bobby Seidlecki. When you also consider that Loyola lost All South midfielder Bobby Gaare to graduation this year you can see the emphasis that must be placed on the de-so will the opposition. Loyola's hope for a third straight undefeated year will lie in the hands of the untried defense. Good Luck tomorrow.

Harried Harriers Carry On; Lynchburg First Adversary

Loyola's Harriers will begin a rough eleven meet schedule tomorrow when they travel to Lynchburg College. Owners of a 2-3 record from last year, the team hopes to bring a successful season to coach Lefty Reitz despite a few interesting problems. Lost to the Greyhounds are the excellent services of half-mile & mile school record holder Ray Mechel who joined the Armed Forces during the summer. Also the fact that Lynchburg will be facing the Hounds a mere 12 days after school returned to session doesn't particularly enhance the chances of the Hounds. Back from last year's squad are juniors Mike Hodges (two mile school record holder), Jeff Hild (capt.), Bill Doherty, Bob Kyle, Dick Pabst, Gene Jendrek, sophs., Tom Goodman, Lew Libby, and freshman newcomer Dave Harry. Lynchburg's tough four mile excursion through the mountains of Virginia should be a good indication of the Hound hill 'n dalers expectations for the year. Each meet this year will be a close event, as was last year when the Hounds had to scrap for every point, so the tradition wears on. Loyola College has now established a tradition for losing their top distance runners each year through some other means than graduation. Two years ago Loyola lost premeir half-miler, Cal Scroggins and this year they lost Ray Meckel. Keep up the good work. '69 Greyhound To Have More News, Features

The new school year brings a new look in the Greyhound, under the direction of Senior Co-editor Tom Cramblitt and Junior Co-editor Jeff Amdur. Working with this year's advisor, Mr. Francis Cunningham of the philosophy department and the editorial staff of Joe Greene, Ray LaVerghetta and Jeff Hild, the Editors-in-chief have lined up many new features.

First, all the major committees and council's of the school will have a standing staff reporter assigned to them for the purpose of in-depth coverage of such events as the S.G. Senate meetings and the meetings of the Academic Council.

Second, political and social news will receive extra notice with the institution of regular columns. In upcoming weeks, Ed Conboy, '72 and Bruce O'Neill '70 will tackle major political issues from the vantage points of the left and the right respectively. In their first effort, appearing in next week's Greyhound, Edd and Bruce will present their views on the subject of Welfare.

Social events taking place in and around the city of Baltimore will be highlighted in a weekly column by Greg Hartley '70. Greg will also cover the major restaurants, coffee houses and movies, telling the student body the places to go on a Saturday night. Gerry Blair '70, will start a regular review column on leading record releases. In next week's Greyhound, Gerry begins with a review of the Crosby, Stills and Nash album.

The final addition to this year's Greyhound will be a major change in format. To keep up with the expanding student body, starting next week, and continuing every other week from then on, the Hound will come out in an expanded six-page edition. It is the hope of the editors that expanded advertising will allow the six page formate to become a weekly happening in the second semester.

Space age wrench.

Suppose you're up in space and you need to tighten a nut on the outside of your space vehicle. Well . . . if you use an ordinary power wrench, you know what happens! You spin around. Not the nut. But with this new space wrench, the nut turns—not you! Neat? You bet. And we've got all kinds of fascinating equipment designed specially for way out there. And lots for way down here, too. If you're a science or engineering graduate and you're looking for a good place for your talents, be an officer, a leader, on the Aerospace Team. The U.S. Air Force is the largest scientific and research organization of the space age. You'll be right where the breakthroughs are...breakthroughs such as better ways to tighten a nut. Pretty exciting if you're looking for a new twist.
